SHERWIN-WILLIAMS AEROSPACE COATINGS ADDS TO LEADERSHIP TEAM

James Havers-Strong Joins Organization to Lead its Global Sales Team and Distribution Base

Andover, Kan. – James W. Havers-Strong has been appointed Sales Manager and joins the leadership team at Sherwin-Williams Aerospace Coatings. In his new executive role, he will oversee and direct experienced aerospace industry coatings sales and service teams as well as have direct responsibility for worldwide distribution. The announcement was made by J. Marc Taylor, Director - Sherwin-Williams Aerospace Coatings.

Bringing more than 15 years experience in the aerospace industry, Havers-Strong was formerly North American Airline Market Manager for Akzo Nobel Aerospace Coatings (ANAC), where he was responsible for leadership, direction and strategy and revenue growth for its North American commercial airline MRO market. Previously he held management and national aviation account direction positions with DuPont Performance Coatings, HSH Interplan USA, HSH Aerospace Finishes NV Belgium and Chevron Aerospace UK. This background has provided him with extensive knowledge in overseeing commercial and general aviation strategic accounts on both a North American and global basis.

“I am delighted to join such a dynamic, customer-focused organization,” said Havers-Strong. “Sherwin-Williams Aerospace is listening to its customers and developing the next generation systems and taking aircraft paint technology to a new level.”

A 1991 graduate of City of London University, he has completed Lloyd's of London Broking Exams/ACII and is a certified Six Sigma Black Belt. James also has a personal passion for the aviation industry and is a private pilot.
